A PSYCHO threatened to kill a mum and her daughter hours after the youngster won an Irish Mirror Pride of Ireland Award.

The thug flicked a lighter in the face of Roisin Halligan, 12, and told her: "I'm going to kill you and your mam." She won the bravery award after a petrol bomb was thrown through her gran's window last October.

Then 11, Roisin suffered serious burns protecting her two baby cousins. The same scumbag was suspected of carrying out the attack in Waterford but gardai dropped the charges.

Her mum Sabrina said: "He's saying he's going to do it again."

TROUBLED singer Dolores O'Riordan has enjoyed a wild night out with a hot young musician.

And the former Cranberries star, who faces court over an alleged air rage rampage at Shannon Airport in November, is said to be happier than ever despite the breakdown of her marriage.

The Limerick native is believed to have found love again after being snapped on a night out in Dublin last Sunday with Ole Koretsky, who lives in the city but is of Russian descent.

During dinner in Kite, a Chinese restaurant in Ballsbridge, they chatted with fellow diners Philip and Sandra Tobin.

Philip said: "Dolores and Ole were having a great time. They were singing in the restaurant and we got talking to them.

"Some of the other diners weren't too happy but myself and my wife loved it."

Philip revealed 43-year-old Dolores opened up to him about her marriage split being one of the factors leading to her arrest over the alleged air rage bust-up last November.

He added: "Dolores is a gorgeous lady, very fragile but so open and honest. She told me some terrible, terrible stuff about what she's been through. It's been very tough for her but she seems to be in a better place now.

"She is certainly very happy and in love with Ole."

Philip revealed Dolores is relaunching her music career and has started a band with Ole and former Smiths bass player Andy Rourke, adding: "They were singing some of their new stuff in the restaurant - it sounds amazing."

Andy and Ole have worked together in the past under the name Jetlag.

Philip, who runs a Saturday night club called Hollywood Nights in the Vanilla nightclub in Dublin's Hampton Hotel, said the group got on so well they continued the party in nearby Mary Mac's Bar.

He added: "Dolores was in great form and we continued the singsong in the pub. It was brilliant craic and we kept going until 2am.

"We got a photo with Dolores and Ole and the generous chap even gave me his jacket which he bought for $1,000 in Macy's in New York. I laughed and said it was too much and I was too old for it but he insisted. I have given it to my son who is thrilled with it."

Dolores separated from her husband of 20 years Don Burton late last year.

The pair lived together in Canada and have three children Taylor, 16, Molly, 13, and nine-year-old Dakota.

News of her marriage split hit the headlines after the Linger singer was held at Shannon Airport after she was alleged to have stamped on the foot of a stewardess and then head-butted and spat at a garda sent to arrest her when her flight from New York landed. The star was later taken to University Hospital Limerick after being assessed by a doctor and released from custody.

Dolores' mum Eileen said her daughter, who suffers with bipolar disorder, failed to recognise her at Shannon Garda station following the incident.

Eileen explained: "She didn't know who I was, she was trying to cover herself from me." The singer is now facing court in Ennis, Co Clare, later this year after the DPP recommended she be charged.

Any one guilty of a Section 2 assault can be fined up to €1,850 or sentenced to a maximum of six months in jail.

After the incident Dolores apologised to Aer Lingus flight attendant Carmel Coyne, whose foot was allegedly hurt.
