

TRIBUNE ENTERTAINMENT

city limits

by KEVIN BARRY

Tired And Emotional

This fine bunch of minstrels are none other than An Emotional Fish whose music will swim (sorry) over the masses in Dredds Rock Club at Cruises on Friday week, February 2.

Much hyped, the band do have a nice original air about them and their "Celebrate" single from late last year was a fine introduction. They first came into the public eye on the Tennants "Tour With No Name" with The Dixons. A record deal quickly followed and a debut album is in the making. A lively bunch, they seem to have taken a bit of a shine to the Treaty City as they played down here only last week. If you missed them that time, try and get along next week.

AN EMOTIONAL FISH

Demonstration Blues

The Cranberry Saw Us are a foursome who, as far as I know, have not yet played live. Instead they've headed straight for the sound proof environs of Xeric Studios and have managed to cook up a nicely varied four-track demo tape.

It opens with "Throw Me Down A Big Stairs", a quivering guitar song that smacks of a good idea. A brooding intro latches onto a catchy melody and it's a good, competent effort.

"How's It Going To Bleed" is deadly serious in tone and its measured moodiness flows nicely alongside a delicate refrain. "Storm In A Teacup", on the other hand, sounds like

The Monkees - bright playful pop with its heart in the right place and you almost forgive them for the truly awful rhyming couplets. Finally, "Good Morning God" displays a Cure-ish guitar riff and a Stunning-type line in lyrics. If they give it a bit of time, who knows?

THE CRANBERRY SAW US

Happening

Tom Dunne of Something Happens who will be back in Limerick for another gig within the next month or so. It's likely to be at the Two Mile Inn again. Watch this space for further details.

Meanwhile, the band's third album is set to be released in early summer. It was recorded during the winter in Los Angeles and rumour has it that it's going to set the shelves alight!

"Cats" The Po

Following the production of the Olympia show, Eireann have quite a coup in their theatre troupe chance to see the cal "Cats" at the Depot in Dublin. Special training up in March and the all-in ticket between £20 and £30. Early booking advised.

Fast moving bl

rafters of the nesday for the The Rightou residency. Their first show swayed to the so cajun and dynam The Dudes will Wednesday by Meanwhile, Bol a special New Y fortunates who takes place on able by calling The George an Club hosted promising

COPY DEADLINE FOR CITY LIMITS

Editorial & Advertising
4 p.m. TUESDAY

Cu Chulainn Lounge

PATRICKSWELL - ☎ 061-355138

Saturday 27th: HARMONY

Sunday 28th: NASHVILLE

COMING SOON - TABLE QUIZ

Team of 5 :: £10 per team entry. Tel. 061-355138 for information

O'Sullivan's Lounge

Freigh Inn, Newport ☎ 061-378122

Sat. 27th Jan.: CABARET in aid of Mulchair Drainage

Saturday 3rd Feb.: THE VANTONES

All Change . . . For Love!

Ah me! It's that type of the year again. Love is in the air and Valentines Day is almost upon us. And to celebrate the occasion, the Castleoaks are running a train from Limerick to Castleconnell for a Valentines Ball.

Here's the schedule. You hop on the train at Colbert Station at 7.50pm. You get the Castleconnell and disembark to either the Oaks itself or The Worlds Inn or Charcos for dinner. Then it's back to the Oaks for music and dancing and, of course, romance.

Tickets are £17 from the Castleoaks. You pay your money, you take your chances.

CATS

THE PHENOMENAL MUSICAL SHOW
SPECIAL INTERCITY TRIP
DIRECT TO CATS
at DUBLIN'S POINT THEATRE

Cost Per Person: £27

INCLUDES: Return Rail to Dublin - Saturday
Dublin - Admission to Show
Departs Limerick - serving Thurin
Templemore - Sunday 10th, 11th

Contact your local station for details
intour

WEGORNER LOGIC