The Cranberries do it in Empire Music

Mike Hogan, Guitarist with The Cranberries spoke to the Limerick Post from London earlier this week.

Due for release on 1st. March, Limerick's most promising young Band, The Cranberries will launch their debut LP entitled "Everyone Else is Doing It, Why can't We" in Empire Music store, Limerick on Thursday, 4th. This is sure to be a signing occasion and judging by the flattering critical acclaim received by the Melody

Maker, the Band is poised to soar. Well known to Limerick audiences the Cranberries of course are haunting vocalist, Dolores O'Riordan, Noel Hogan, Guitar, Mike Hogan, Bass and Fergal Lawlor, Drums. Dolores wrote the music and lyrics and the album was recorded in the Windmill Studio, Dublin and mixed in London's Maison Rouge and is, Mike says, a reflection of how the Group has evolved musically since they came together some years ago. The Berries had just finished a gig in University of London and completed a British tour that included Glasgow, Sheffield and Portsmouth and Mike told us that though the Group will appear on the Dave Fanning Show this Friday, the highlight as far as they are concerned is the launch in their own home town of the album in Empire Music on Thursday next.
