The highlight of the year so far in the Cork Rock Calendar was the Cork Rocks Weekend held over the first weekend in June. 15 bands took to the stage in Sir Henrys over 3 nights and 5 others played in the annual Lark by the Lee. The whole thing was sponsored by the Evening Echo and 2FM and everything went without a hitch thanks to the likes of Ian Wilson and Colm O'Callaghan.

I missed Friday night in Sir Henrys unfortunately because I had to go to a dinner dance! but the general concensus from people I spoke to was that The Frank and Walters were excellent as usual while The Subterraneans and The I.R.S. impressed as well. Bird were very average while The Precious Stones were fairly bad.

day nights line up drew a good crowd and the night was opened by Stones from Dungarvan who I thought were O.K. - no improved alot since I saw them supporting they've a good chance of getting were The Brilliant "band
