

Orchestra is opening its 66th season in the park

The 66th season of summer concerts in Fairmount Park by the Philadelphia Orchestra, running from Monday to July 20, offers some excellent evenings of classical music at the Mann Music Center.

On June 19, actor and classical pianist Dudley Moore will command the keyboard (and crack an occasional joke), as Charles Dutoit, starting his sixth season as Mann artistic director, conducts Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 21, Stravinsky's Scherzo a la Russe, Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue, and Handel's Water Music suite.

Orchestra musical director Wolfgang Sawallisch will make his Mann debut July 10 for a week of concerts, beginning with Wagner's Overture to "Das Liebesverbot" and featuring works by Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven throughout the week.

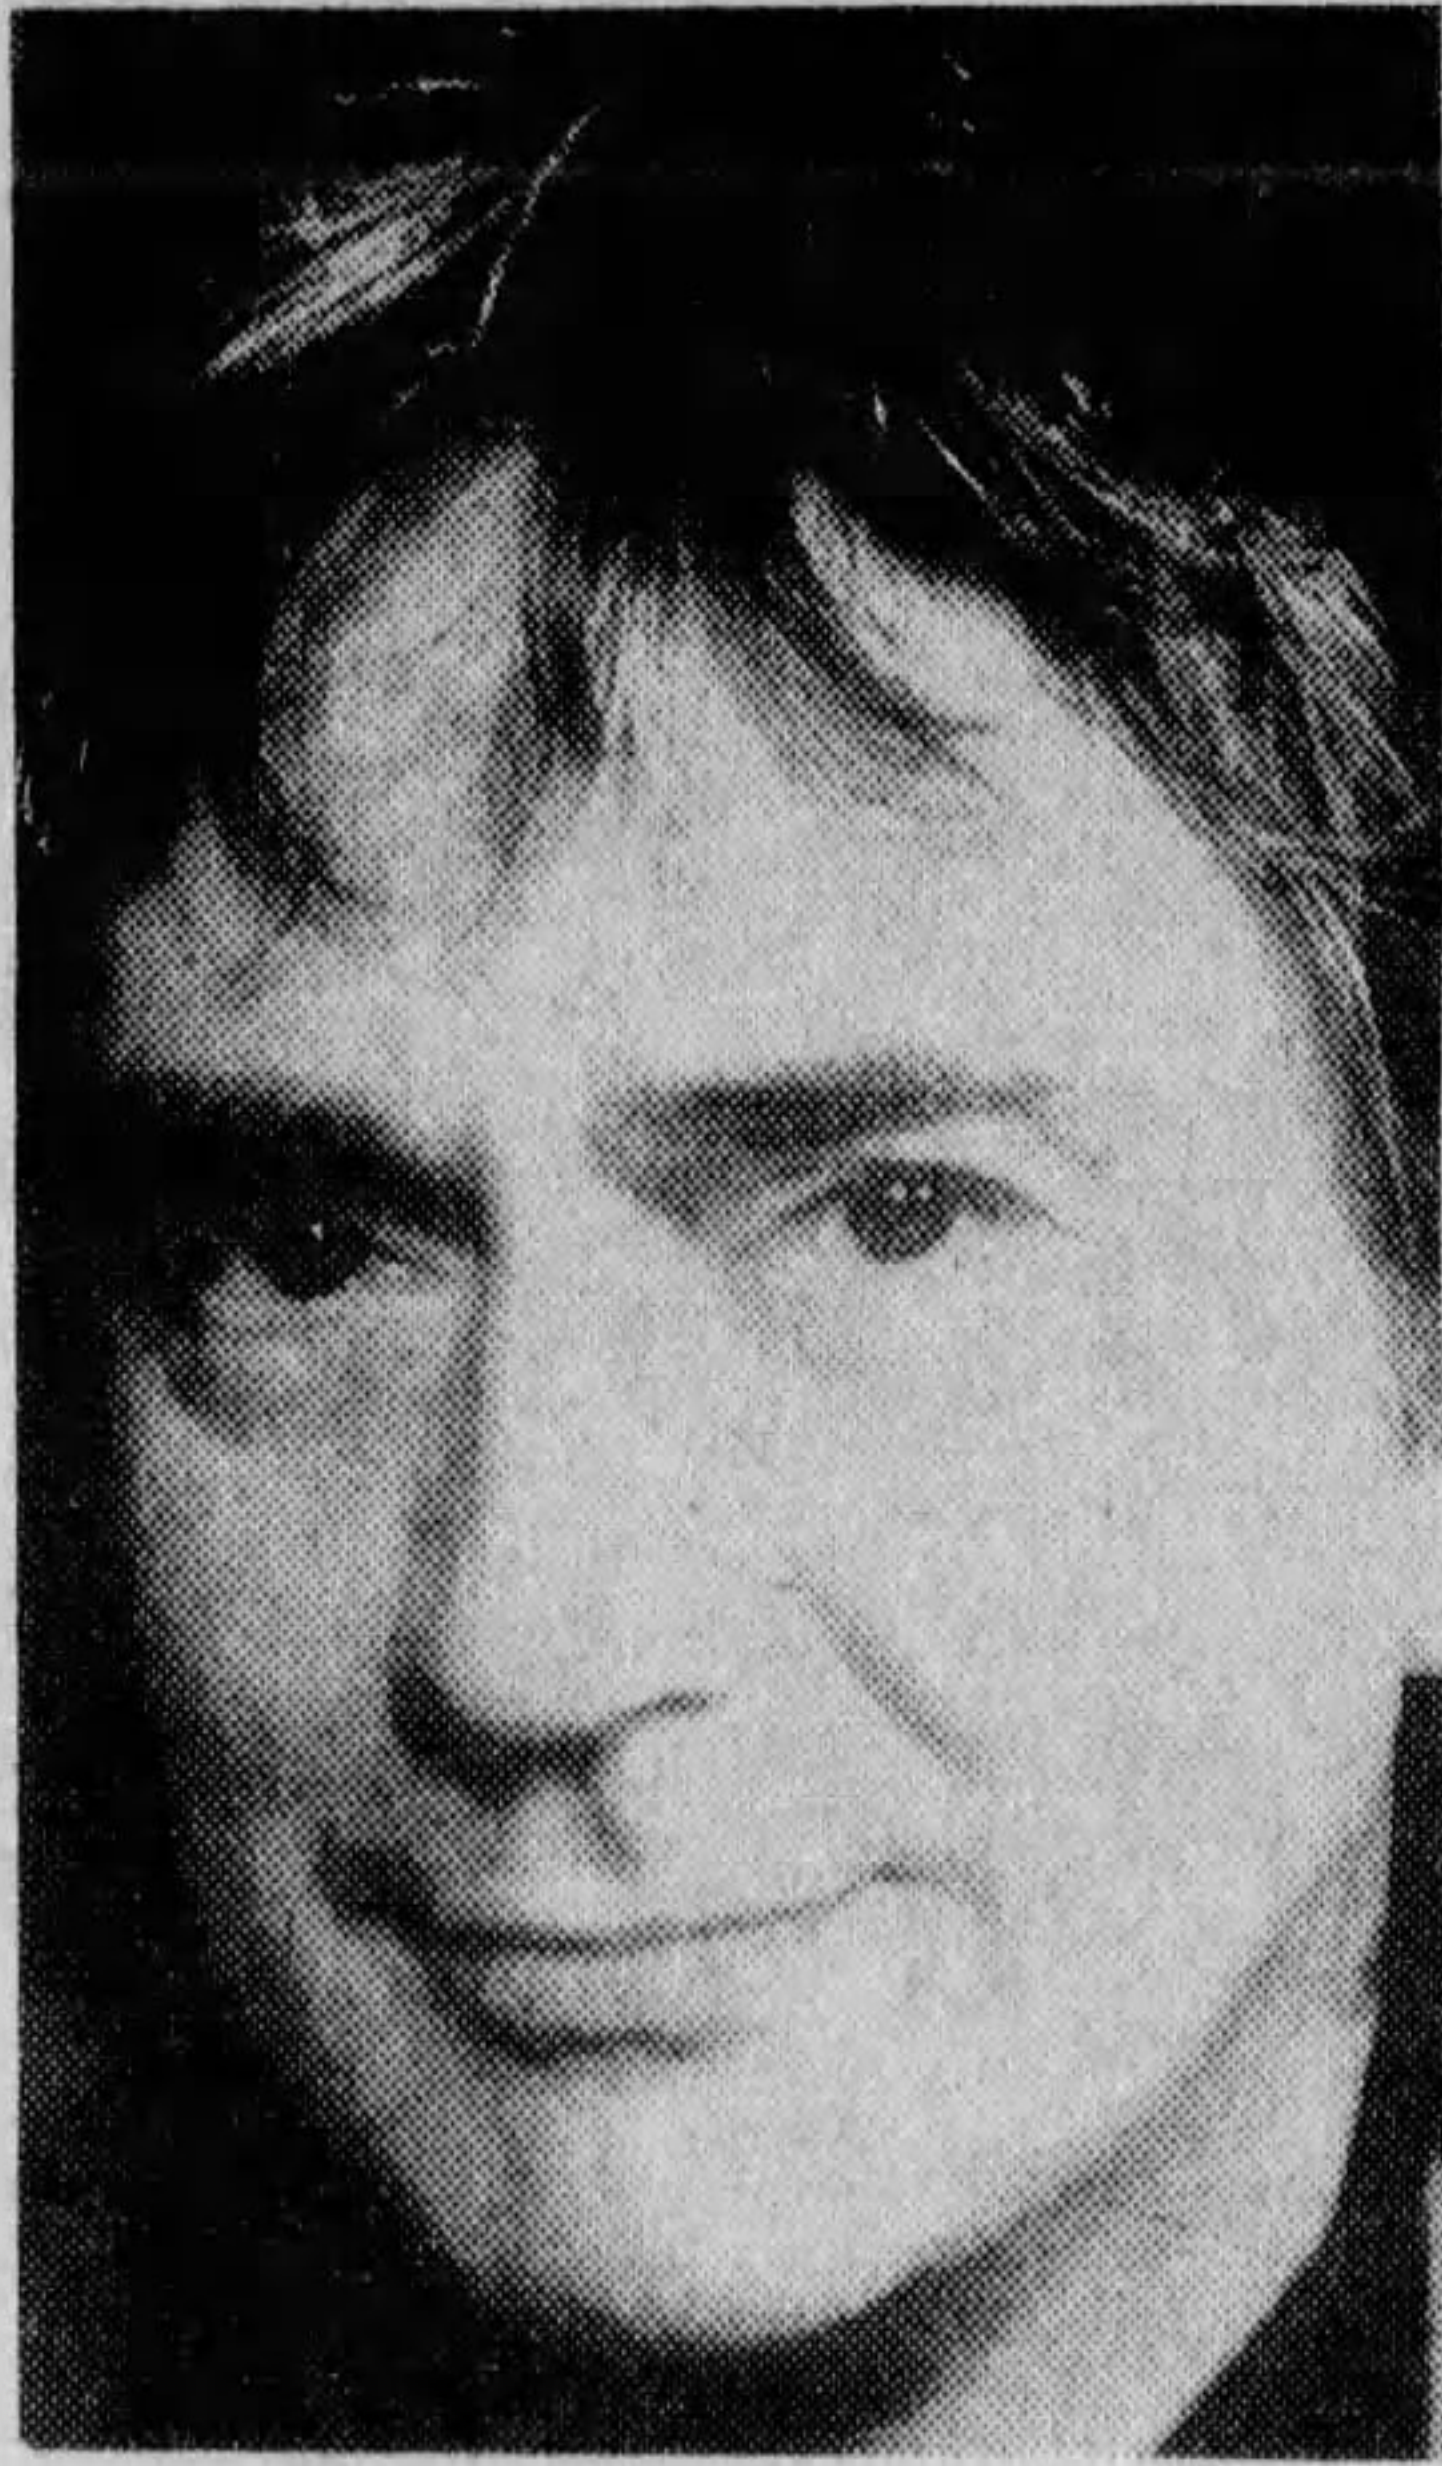

Other shows of note: "A Night in Old Vienna," with soprano Kaaren Erickson, July 5; an all-Tchaikovsky concert followed by fireworks, July 17; and violin master Itzhak Perlman concluding the summer series with a celebration of the 30th anniversary of his Mann debut, July 20. Performances begin at 8. Tickets range from $15 to $29.50 for reserved seating, and can be purchased at the Mann box office or by phone at 215-878-7707. Look for free-ticket information about lawn seating in The Inquirer.

One World One Heart. An ambitious effort at the Waterfront Entertainment Centre in Camden, this one-day festival will offer a slew of solid talent, including folk singer Nanci Griffith, the Canadian alterna-rockers Barenaked Ladies (clothed men, all), scorching New Orleans R&B soul band the Radiators, folkie Billy Bragg, and post-new-wavers Timbuk 3.

Wary of potentially searing heat? Not to worry — the gig is being put on by Ben and Jerry's ice cream, and will no doubt feature mountains of soothing Cherry Garcia and Rain Forest Crunch. There will be free ice cream for anybody who writes his U.S. representative a postcard at the booth.

Lawn seating for the July 9 event is $12.50 (kids under 12 are free when accompanied by an adult), or $17.50 and $20 for reserved seats. Tickets are available at most Blockbuster Video stores, or by calling 800-833-0080. For information only, call 609-635-1445.

Bloomsday. Second only to St. Patrick's Day in Irish significance in this country would have to be Bloomsday, June 16, which marks the date in 1904 on which James Joyce set Leopold Bloom's Dublin odyssey in Ulysses. The fourth annual celebration takes place over two days, June 16-17. A public reading of the classic work takes place from noon to 5 p.m. June 16 on the steps of the Rosenbach Museum, 2210 Delancey Place, with, among other guest readers, Mayor Ed Rendell, District Attorney Lynn Dudley Moore will be at the keyboards during the Philadelphia Orchestra's June 19 concert, and soprano Kaaren Erickson will sing on July 5.

Abraham, and Philadelphia Museum of Art president Robert Montgomery Scott. (Rain or shine.)

A conversation involving the director and star of the 1968 film version of the novel, Joseph Strick and Milo O'Shea, and Ray Suarez, host of National Public Radio's Talk of the Nation, will be accompanied by clips of the film. It takes place at 8 p.m. in the Annenberg Center's Zellerbach Theatre, 3680 Walnut St ($10). A reception follows in the Annenberg Center lobby.

On June 17, from 10:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., the Philadelphia Museum of Art presents a Bloomsday movie marathon, screening Ulysses, Finnegan's Wake, The Dead and Voyage to Italy, movies based on Joyce writings, followed by discussions with two Joyce scholars from the University of Pennsylvania. It's $5 per film, or $10 for all four (includes museum admission). Information: 215-732-1600, ext. 16.
