

May 1st 2001

Hey there how's it going?

We are back in Dublin recording the second half of the Album. We have most of the songs completed, there are just a few bits of backing vocal and percussion to be done before we start mixing. We ended up recording seven songs and yesterday we did a cover of an Elvis number called "In The Ghetto". They all turned out better than we were expecting, and to be honest I'm blown away (goosebump-city), although now we have the awkward situation of having to choose which songs go on and which stay off the record. Not an easy decision!!

It's been great working with Steve again, everyone has been in great spirits and really positive, which makes recording go so much smoother. So, it's off to London next week to mix and then we have to decide which songs are going to be singles and start choosing video directors! The album is still scheduled to come out in October this year!

We are going to be doing a promotional tour until Christmas 2001. Things like TV appearances, radio and magazine interviews etc. And Next January (2002) it's gig-central (touring) for a year and a half!! Yee haw!

Alrighty then, I'll bid you farewell!

See yuh later,

- Fergal.
