Hello there!

We are in our studio today rehearsing for the upcoming tour. The songs are all sounding surprisingly tight even though we haven't played them for four or five months. We also have been working on new songs and hope to do some more recording in August.

I'm off to a concert in Dublin on Saturday to see "Radiohead". They are playing in a venue called "The Olympia", which is about a 2000 capacity. I've never seen them play indoors, and even though I've seen them play five or six times, I'm really looking forward to it as I'm a massive fan. I haven't seen a gig since December (where I went to see "Aqualung" & Limerick band "Woodstar") and that was before we played, so you can't really appreciate those gigs fully because you're not really focused, as your thoughts are on playing your own gig. But I shall be consuming the Guinness and be totally focused, albeit with a hand over one eye!!

Oh, I saw a preview for the Matrix Reloaded the other day and it looks mind-blowing. I've been reading lots of articles about it so I'll have to book a babysitter for some night next week. The technology is absolutely incredible, but what I like most about it is the hidden philosophy and the little things that make you think, even after the movie has finished. A work of genius!

No other exciting news I'm afraid, but I'll let you know how the gig went!

Take Care,

-Fergal.
