

Zombiguidenews

home | news | archives | forums | cranberries discography | mp3's + videos | contact

« Photos + Setlist: Dolores performs in Taiwan      RTÉ Late Late Show video now online »

Sunday Magazine: “Fame almost killed me”

April 23rd, 2007 by Alex

In a new interview for the April 15 issue of the UK's Sunday Magazine, Dolores O'Riordan made her own headline by telling the magazine, “Fame almost killed me.”

Speaking about the days at the end of the To the Faithful Departed tour, she said, “I was overworking and I had this terrible metldown. It happens when you get famous very young.”

“In the industry, so many people feed off you, you don't know who to trust. Many in that situation turn to drugs and don't live to tell the tale.”

When asked about her tabloid headline-making lawsuit against former nanny Joy Fahy in 2004, she responded, “The allegations were very damaging. Our children are precious, we'd do anything to protect them. I'm a wonderful mum. Nobody says otherwise.”

A high-res scan and brand new photo are below for your enjoyment.

Post your thoughts about this news on the Zombiguide Discussion Forums.
Got some Dolores O'Riordan news? Send it to Zombiguide!

